

Teen-age girls find body

Huron farmer robbed, fatally shot

A Huron Township farmer who lived alone was shot and killed late Sunday night, apparently by robbers who broke into and ransacked his house, police said.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Seaway Hospital in Trenton was John Golebiowski, 61, who lived on Van Horn road, west of Inkster Road.

Det. Alan Anderson of the Flat Rock State Police Post said the victim died from multiple gunshot wounds to the body. He said police are seeking information on a late-model yellow Pontiac Firebird which was seen near Golebiowski's house at about the time of the murder, estimated at between 10-11 p.m.

Huron Police Chief Joe Carney said Golebiowski was a widower and that his house had also been burglarized last April. He said the victim's wife died about three years ago.

According to Anderson's investigation, the farmer sold produce to the Eastern Market in Detroit and was preparing to go there Sunday night. Two teenage girls, who were planning to ride to Detroit with Golebiowski, came by his house and found him shot, said the detective.

Anderson said that to his knowledge, the deceased did not have any immediate relatives. He said one of the two young girls occasionally cleaned the farmer's house.

"He was born in Poland," the detective said, "and from what I've been able to find out, he came to the United States years ago from Canada."

Sup. Roy Raker said he had known Golebiowski for about 15 years, but "not on a personal basis". He said he knew that the farmer's wife had died several years ago.

Raker said Golebiowski and his wife raised produce which they sold to the Eastern Market. He said the farmer had been to the township hall several times in the last four months in regard to zoning on land contained in an estate in which he had part ownership.

Raker said Golebiowski wanted to keep 10-12 acres zoned for agricultural purposes and did not want zoning changed to suburban residential. The supervisor said other owners evidently wanted to change zoning to R-1S, a classification that applies to parcels under 10 acres.

Carney said his department assisted the state police when Golebiowski's body was found. He said state police have several leads in the case and may soon have several suspects in custody for questioning.

Anderson asked that anyone with information relating to the shooting should contact the Flat Rock State Police Post at 1-782-2434.

Mary may have had a little lamb, but Mary Nazarchuk of New Boston, also had a ram, an ewe and cheviot which turned out to be Grand Champions at the recently held county fair. Showing off one of her first place "Grand Champion" ribbons, Miss Nazarchuk wound up with top ribbons for the Cheviot, ram, lamb, Suffolk. She also earned Grand Champion designations for goats — Saanen, buckling, produce of dam and Champion Achievement Award. In the Open Class Goat Show, Mary had the Grand Champion Saanen. A member of the 4-H Doe-Buck Kids Club, Miss Nazarchuk has been interested in animals "ever since I can remember" she says.

Schools to return Detro's $500 gift

Romulus' new superintendent of schools said he will recommend to the school board that $500 donated recently to the summer honors band by a Detroit firm proposing to build a sewage recovery plant in the city be returned.

"I do not feel that it is appropriate to accept the contribution at this time," said Supt. William Bedell.

The firm — Detro Recovery — has presented preliminary plans to Romulus City Council to build a plant that would transform Detroit sewage sludge into fertilizer.

Proposed site of the plant would be 128 acres west of the C & O Railroad and south of Ecorse Road.

The firm's proposal has generated much discussion, pro and con, among city residents. A public hearing and presentation of a site plan by Detro before the Planning Commission are scheduled this week.

Bedell said once the city and Detro have resolved the matter, the school district would be in a better position to consider acceptance of the donation.

3-year pact

Board, teachers reach tentative agreement

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Placing student needs above teacher working conditions helped him bring about a tentative agreement Thursday between the Romulus school district and the teachers union, said newly-appointed Supt. William Bedell Friday.

"I pressed hard to convince the union that it is difficult to accomplish anything for students when too much time is being spent arguing about employee working conditions," Dr. Bedell said.

Pending teacher ratification, set for Friday, Aug. 29, and that by the school board about a week later, the new three-year contract will bring an end to the long-standing controversy between school board and teachers in the Romulus school district.

Romulus teachers and those in three other neighboring districts went on strike last March 10 and did not return to classrooms until April 18.

After several court sessions, teachers agreed to resume duties and negotiations were placed in the hands of a state fact-finder.

Only eight weeks into his new job as head of Romulus Community School, Dr. Bedell already has met on three occasions with representatives of the Wayne County - MEA-NEA and the state mediator. The WC - MEA-NEA is the union which represents 14 districts including Romulus and which was formed to give added leverage at the bargaining table through unification.

Commenting on talks Thursday after tentative agreement was reached, Dr. Bedell said, "Both sides gave. I believe the agreement will be acceptable to the community and the teachers."

The superintendent said that he could not divulge details of the new pact, other than it would cover the 1979-80, 1980-81, and 1981-82 school years.

Prior to their strike, local teachers had expressed dissatisfaction for working last year (1979-80) without a new contract.

Dr. Bedell said both sides will now have to notify the state fact-finder in writing that they wish a previously-scheduled meeting with him this week cancelled. The fact-finder can then stop working on the negotiations, said Dr. Bedell.

If the new contract is ratified by both sides, details of the new pact will be made public.

One of the stumbling blocks in negotiations had been the impasse between the Romulus school board and teachers over salary boosts. The board's latest offer had been a 26 percent raise over three years, while the WC - MEA-NEA had insisted on a higher figure.

Dr. Bedell had been with the Livonia school system for 23 years and was assistant superintendent there prior to his appointment as head of Romulus public schools.

On Cable TV

Western 5 cancels public hearings

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Cable television, a senior citizens complex serving five area communities, and refunding for the coming year occupied the bulk of the agenda at last week's monthly session of the Western Five Community Conference.

After much discussion, the Western Five board approved a motion by Belleville Treasurer James White to cancel two scheduled cable TV hearings in Van Buren Township and Romulus in favor of one to be scheduled later in Huron Township.

Originally, additional cable TV hearings had been set for Sept. 6 in Van Buren and Sept. 13 in Romulus. But, Pat Jordan, administrative aide to Director Henry Redman, told the board that response to letters and telephone call had been disappointing.

The two hearings were slated for presentations by several cable TV companies to the governing bodies of the member communities of Western Five and the general public.

But, since Huron Township has not had cable TV presentations made there, the board supported a suggestion by Huron Sup. Roy Raker to have a public hearing in his township hall. Raker said he will inform the board of the date for the hearing.

Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley recommended that those persons who had indicated they would attend one or both of the two cancelled hearings be notified that they could attend the Huron hearing when it is scheduled.

Western Five is a consortium which represents the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron and the cities of Belleville and Romulus. Its board is composed of the top elected officials of those communities.

Absent at last week's meeting were Van Buren Sup. Pat Cullin, board chairman; Belleville Mayor Justin Emerson; and Sumpter Sup. Robert K. Demski. White sat in for Emerson, and his attendance along with Oakley and Raker made the necessary legal quorum to hold a meeting.

Several cable TV hearings have already been held in Romulus, with companies seeking either permission to build one overall installation for the five communities collectively, or the authority to build one for specific communities individually.

In other business, Director

Redman said Western Five has received an initial $50,000 to continue operation. Last year's funding by the Wayne County Office of Intergovernmental Affairs and Management ran out July 16.

Redman indicated he will have further talks with Director Jim Curran of the county agency on additional funding for the coming year's operation, that could include token contributions from each of the five member communities.

Oakley suggested that Western Five should investigate programs and areas in which the consortium can assist its members. Raker, who

Huron school bells to ring on Sept. 3

School bells weren't the only thing on the minds of the Huron Board of Education trustees when they met last week. Trustees had a full agenda awaiting them.

The board set opening date of school, purchased three school buses, and took action on a grievance at the regular meeting. Huron students will be asked to report on Wednesday, Sept. 3 for a full day of classes. Lunch will also be served on that day. Teachers will be reporting the day before for orientation.

Approval was given to purchase three school buses. A thirty-five passenger Bluebird International at a cost of $20,740, and two sixty-five passenger buses at a cost of $56,812 were purchased from the Waltz Garage.

The cost of lunch for the Huron students will be increased five cents. Elementary students will now pay 70 cents and middle and senior high 75 cents. Lunch for the teacher's will remain at $1.35.

Athletic Director Hank Smith recommended an increase in general admission to all athletic contests. Football, boy's basketball, and wrestling admission will be $20. All other sports will be $1.00. Children who are six years of age through the fifth grade will pay $1.00. Senior citizens will be admitted free.

A grievance by the Teamsters Local 214 concerning an additional week of vacation pay for five members was granted by the Board.

In other action, the Board extended a maternity leave to Darcy Connolly, approved a leave of absence for the semester to Juliann Cook, and the request of Mrs. Hubert to use the elementary school for Bible Club after school, combined $40,000 to the 1980-81 athletic budget, accepted a letter of resignation from Chris Fields, and granted Neta Morgan, Assistant Principal of the High School, 12 days off in final consideration of her 1978-79 salary inequity.

Bills totaling $309,540.50 were approved for payment.

New county agency to help children find foster parents

A new agency is being created for the exclusive purpose of coordinating the placement of all Wayne County Children needing care outside their homes, it was announced today by United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit.

The decision to set up the Central Referral Agency for children resulted from two years' intensive involvement of child care agencies along with volunteer leaders who were called together by UCS to unplug Wayne County's chronically congested child placement system, explained UCS Executive Vice-President Richard F. Huegli.

"Studies conducted by UCS, dating back to 1968, uncovered urgent problems in the child care field; and they were due mostly to the complexity of relationships between public and voluntary agencies which permeated the entire system of child care," Huegli said.

"This has been exceedingly costly to both the child who needs placement and to the community who pays for the service."

Findings of the UCS studies, the last one conducted in 1976, showed serious inadequacies in the system designed to provide children with care and protection:

- While awaiting placement, children languish either in jail-like settings, in a series of emergency shelters, or in other inappropriate places. Workers responsible for placing children are often unaware of the many varied programs, and planners usually do not know about the number and types of beds available.

- Children await placement while beds remain empty. Beds do not match current needs. Predictions and planning to meet placement needs are accomplished by guesswork and without system-wide data.

- Little is known about the effect of the placement system on children, leaving the system's weaknesses and strengths largely unidentified and unattended.

- Referrals often contain inadequate or outdated information. Required referral information varies from agency to agency, forcing a placement worker to prepare several different referral packets for a single child. The procedure used to achieve placement also varies from one agency to another.

- Data indicate that the longer a child stays in the placement system, the less likely she/he is to get out of the system at all. The planning effort to move children out of the placement system is its weakest segment. Children also enter the system before all possible efforts of keeping the family intact are exhausted.

- Inadequate information systems, uncontrolled intake, and multiple funding sources make it difficult to know how many children are in care and how long they remain.

WHAT KIND OF A LAWYER CAN HELP ME WRITE MY WILL?

A general-service lawyer can usually take care of your will unless the estate is quite large, extensive or complicated. If your estate includes a variety of assets such as business holdings, real estate, bonds, stocks - and especially if you operate your own business - you should probably contact a lawyer who specializes in estate planning. The services of a specialist may be more costly at the outset, but he can minimize the effects of federal and state taxes.

No matter the size of your estate, you should consult an attorney. He knows so many of the pitfalls of improperly drawn wills. He keeps up with the latest tax and legal implications. He also knows of the problems of inter-family squabbling when the will is not precisely worded to cover all future situations. Our local lawyers can help to assure your survivors of receiving the most benefit possible which you will to them.

If you're not acquainted with a lawyer who can help you with your will, contact the county bar association. Or call us and we'll give you the names of several who could help you.

One last thing: be sure you have will prepared for both adult members of the family and not just the breadwinner.

Building starts perk up in the city

In spite of the gloomy economic climate that has persisted in the state of Michigan for the past year, the city of Romulus building department has processed a high number of building starts for the first seven months of 1980, according to City Engineer George Bingham.

From January through July, 1980, the building department collected $30,963 in building permit fees, which represents approximately $7 million worth of new construction. That fee figure does not include an additional $21,855 collected for electrical, refrigeration, heating, plumbing and miscellaneous permits.

This year's figures, according to Bingham, have equalled the last several years, even though the economy as a whole has suffered through the most severe downturn since the recession of 1975.

Bingham said some completed projects were the result of long-term planning and came due during this period. Also, he said, many older buildings were badly in need of renovation, but the GOP convention and a brighter future prompted many businesses to forge ahead with their plans. The diversity of Romulus businesses and the strategic location which the City occupies in relation to ground and air transportation facilities also helped to account for the increase in building, he said.

Heading the construction list for the last seven months was the Hilton Airport Inn, which began a $1,550,000 expansion, including 64 new rooms and improvements to their banquet rooms and swimming pool. The Hilton suffered heavy storm damage recently, which may put their construction schedule back several months, Bingham noted.

Some of the other construction starts include a new Federal Express building, renovations to the restaurants and lounges at the Host facilities at the airport and the Ramada Inn, a new Michigan Bell addition on Eureka Road, a $450,000 expansion to the Distron Corporation, wholesale distributors for Burger King, and a $19 million expansion at the Detroit Diesel Allison complex on Ecorse Road.

All these new buildings, expansions and renovations should contribute to easing the financial burden which the city is under, Bingham said. Much of the new tax revenue will not be generated until next year, he said.

For athletic field

North may receive lights

Night football games, track meets and band concerts may soon become a reality at North Jr. High Schools for students of the Romulus school district.

Supt. William Bedell disclosed that development of a central athletic facility for the Romulus school district is one of several possibilities being studied by a citizens single-purpose committee. "The committee is reviewing proposals to light the North Jr. High athletic field and a program to upgrade libraries at several schools," explained the superintendent.

He said the committee will make recommendations to the school board on the best uses that can be made with a $178,000 balance from a 1973 bond issue.

Bedell said the original intent of the bond issue was to build a junior high school and three elementary schools, purchase several school sites and put in asphalt paving at several schools.

Bedell said asphalt paving now is out of the question as projected costs today for the work would run about $400,000 and much of the contemplated work would not have to be done since declining enrollments have closed down some schools.

The superintendent said lighting of the North Jr. High athletic field would be a boon to the school district's sports programs.

"Although the old high school field was lighted, the lights were never transferred to the new high school," said Bedell.

He said William Hardy, athletic director, met last week with a lighting consultant to discuss costs and would make a recommendation to the citizens committee.

"Romulus is one of the few communities in the area which does not have a sports facility for night sports events," the superintendent stressed. "Lighting of the North Jr.

High athletic field was one of the original objectives of the 1973 bond issue."

Bedell said Richard Kelly, who handles school bond programs for the Michigan Dept. of Education, had been contacted and had approved use of the excess funds for athletic field lighting and buying new books for school libraries.

The superintendent also said he had met with a firm to discuss the cost of moving bleachers from Romulus High School to North Jr. High. Once it is determined how much it will cost to light the athletic field and move bleachers then the committee will know how much money can be spent for library books.

Bedell said the approximate price for library books is $7 for elementary schools, $8.80 for junior high, and $10 for high school.

Business community seeks revitalization plan help

Although it commended efforts of the organization, the Romulus City Council recently balked at approving a resolution of support requested by the Romulus Central Business District Association (RCBDA) for its plan to improve the downtown area.

Instead, council told Joyce Palmer of Arc Realty, association secretary, that the group must first have approval of the plan from the city Planning Commission as previously indicated.

The RCBDA, which has been working on a plan to revitalize the downtown business area for more than two years, last July 22 submitted a resolution to council asking support of its efforts.

Although Mrs. Palmer stressed that the group wanted nothing more than an indication of written support at this time, council expressed reluctance without an okay from the Planning Commission.

Mrs. Palmer said that Don Treder, chairman of the Planning Commission, had suggested she appear before council with her request. She cited a letter to the RCBDA from Mike Prybyla, Planning Commission secretary, which commended the RCBDA for its work.

However, council was quick to point out that Prybyla's letter was not a recommendation of approval from the Planning Commission.

Councilman Ed Rush said he favored delaying approval by council until an okay came from the Planning Commission. He was supported by council Jimmie Raspberry who said he did not want the city to be obligated by the resolution for money to pay for the plan.

Mrs. Palmer said the RCBDA had paid its half of the plan's cost. Mayor William M. Oakley said he was certain that the city also paid its half of the cost for the RCBDA plan.

Raspberry said he did not favor "a piecemeal approach" that 20 years later could commit the city financially to aid the planned improvements.

The mayor said he was aware of seven ways that the RCBDA could finance its plan, but said he did not know which avenue the group planned to pursue. He mentioned an "ad valorem" (at large) tax being talked about in connection with the group's plan.

Sometime back, according to Clerk Leonard J. Folmar Wednesday, the RCBDA submitted two resolutions to city council. One sought approval by council of its plan concept to improve the downtown section, while the other sought council approval for a downtown district authority, the latter with council's blessing, could levy taxes to pay for the downtown improvements.

During her request to council last week, Mrs. Palmer made it plain that she was not asking approval of the latter resolution that would establish a downtown district authority to levy taxes.

Folmar said, that to his knowledge, the RCBDA had never asked for approval of the tax-levying authority since it originally submitted that resolution to council.

At conclusion of discussion on Mrs. Palmer's request last week, Raspberry praised the RCBDA for its efforts, but emphasized that the "bottom line" was who pays for improvements under the organization's plan.

Mrs. Palmer said her group's request for approval of the authority would come at another time in the future.

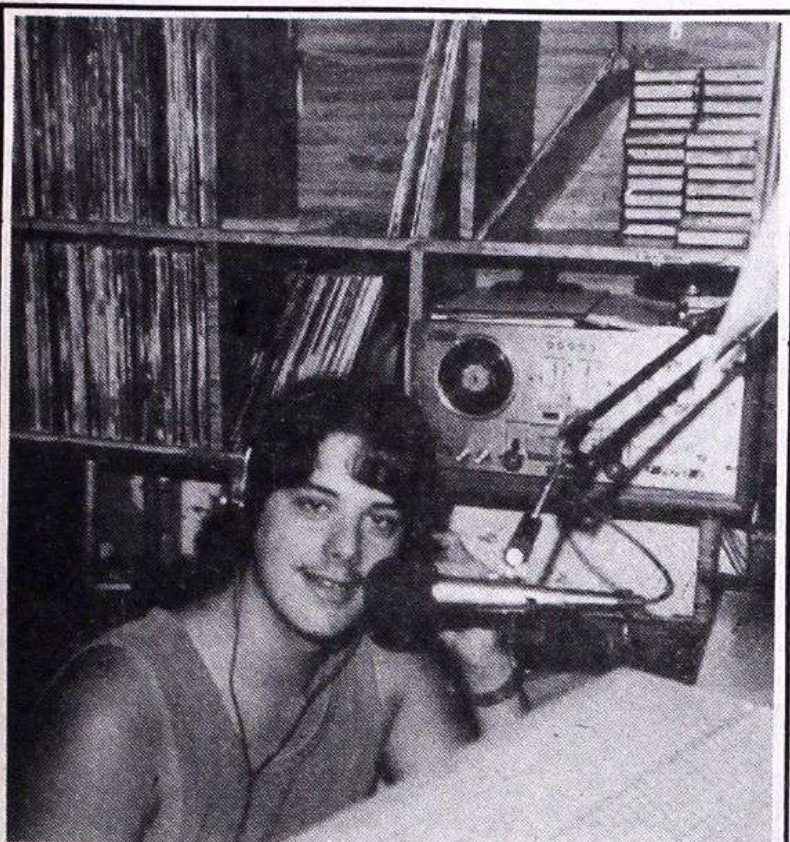

Rush said he would have to go along with a letter from Bill Simonds, RCBDA president, and that the Planning Commission chairman was wrong in telling Mrs. Palmer to come before council.

A letter Aug. 8, 1980 from Simonds to council stated: "It has since been brought to our attention that the Planning Commission must first be supportive, thence, submitting their approval to council."

"In lieu of this, we have enclosed a letter from the Commission, stating their position."

The previously mentioned letter from Prybyla of the Planning Commission had only commended the RCBDA for its work.

In the end, council took no action.

Young Dave Fuller of Romulus talks into the microphone at WSHJ in Southfield where he works as a disc jockey. The 16-year-old junior at Romulus High School is looking forward to a career in radio broadcasting.

At 16, he's already a radio disc jockey

Since the age of 12, Dave Fuller of Romulus has wanted to be a radio disc jockey. Today, at 16, he is on the threshold of a promising career.

Dave, who will be a junior at Romulus High School this fall, is now spinning records and giving out with the dialogue at stereo radio station WSHJ, 88.3 on the FM dial.

Since January, he has had his own radio show from 9 a.m. to noon daily, a step up from taking telephone requests at WTWR in the Renaissance Center in Detroit last year.

Dave worked at WTWR from July to September of 1979. One day, his boss, Steve Edwards, told the disc jockey enthusiast about an opening at WSHJ in Southfield. Dave applied for and got the job.

The Romulus Teenager said he knew Edwards from Dearborn when he used to visit radio station WNIC. Only a few years later the acquaintance with Edwards paid off when young Dave worked under him in the Renaissance Center.

Dave wishes his local high school had more to offer him that would further his radio career. This fall, however, he plans to take a radio and television drama course that is available.

After graduation from RHS, Dave plans to enroll at the Spec Howards radio school in Southfield. The school offers a six-month course in radio broadcasting. He said he has no plans to attend college.

A work report on Dave at WSHJ showed he was progressing well in his chosen field and that his superior felt he had a promising career to look forward to.

Owned by the Southfield school board, WSHJ is an affiliate of the ABC network and carries network programming and news programs, Dave said.

Dave must have felt like a basketball star undecided as to whether he should finish school or turn professional when he was recently offered a job at WLEQ in Ft. Myers, Fla. But, he turned the job down for several reasons, one of them being the low salaries of jobs down south, he explained.

With no other job prospects on the horizon, Dave will be in the classroom next month at RHS, chafing at the bit until he can go to radio school and get on with the hopes of becoming a famous disc jockey someday.

Western 5 decides to cancel Cable TV public hearings served as chairman in Cullin's absence, directed Redman to contact the Downriver Community Conference to see what programs that organization had worked on during its first years of operation.

The Downriver Community Conference is the first consortium and the largest in Michigan and is composed of 16 downriver communities.

Western Five, established by Redman last year with the aid of federal grants from the county, is still in its infancy. Its services to its five members include the recognized fact that large federal grants to benefit the entire area are often more easily obtained than smaller ones sought individually by each community.

Also, when and where possible, Western Five can secure insurance coverage at reduced rates for large policies covering all five communities and save money through fleet purchases of cars, trucks and other motorized equipment.

In discussion on possible programs that Western Five could pursue, Oakley mentioned that Redman could investigate how the consortium could aid in construction of a senior citizens housing development for elders of the five communities.

He cited county-owned land south of Huron River Drive and Haggerty Road as a possible location. Further, he suggested that a grocery store and pharmacy located on the first floor of a structure might meet some of the requirements set down by agencies dispensing federal grants.

Oakley said he felt that a site which is centrally located within the five-community area would be most beneficial to senior citizens.

Downtown due for facelift

View looking west along Goddard Road shows what downtown Romulus looks like today. But, a plan now in the works by the Romulus Central Business District Association hopes to transform the downtown area into a more modern setting. The group has been working on the plan for more than two years. (ANP photo.)

Federal-Mogul is tops in designs

Federal-Mogul Corporation's Precision Forged Products division, Romulus, won an Award of Distinction in the 1980 Powder Metallurgy (P/M) Part-of-the-Year Design Competition, for a P/M hot formed steel cam and race used in a new, improved-fuel economy overdrive automatic transmission for full-size cars.

The competition is sponsored by the Metal Powder Industries Federation, trade association for the international metal powder producing and consuming industries.

Richard Szary, general manager of the division accepted the award for Federal-Mogul at the 1980 International Powder Metallurgy Conference and Exhibition, held in Washington, D.C.

The race is made from 4600 and the cam from 46m modified alloy steel powder. The parts are compacted, sintered and hot formed to a minimum density of 7.82 g/cm3. They are heat treated during hot forming by a proprietary process.

Powder metallurgy was designed from the outset, when the new transmission was conceived. It offers significant cost savings over alternative processes such as machining. It also offered energy and cost savings in heat treating.

The competition is sponsored by the Federation to recognize outstanding examples of powder metallurgy, an automated metalworking process for making precision metal components and shapes from metal powders.

P/M saves energy, conserves raw materials and provides improved manufacturing productivity.

P/M parts are used in automobiles, farm and garden equipment, business machines, and home appliances.

DEBBIS R. JOHNSON

J.C. GROVER, JR.

JAMES J. DOE

The United States Air Force has taken over, at least as far as area recruits go. And here are some of the area residents who made news in the Air Force this week.

Airman Ricky K. Godsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick S. Godsey of 45057 Willis Road, Belleville has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airmen will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

Bryan F. Sardonell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Sardonell of 351 Timber Lane Drive, Belleville has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of senior airman.

Airman Sardonell is a security specialist at Ellsworth Air Force Base, S.D.

- A. — Currently, the interest rate is 11.5 percent. Interest rates vary from time to time. However, once a loan is closed, the interest rate remains in effect until the loan is paid in full.
- Q. — How may a veteran determine what adaptive equipment has been approved by the Veterans Administration?
- A. — Information on VA approved adaptive equipment may be obtained by visiting or calling the nearest VA medical center or outpatient clinic, or by writing directly to the VA Prosthetic Center: 151 Seventh Ave., New York, N.Y.
- Q. — I served eight years of active military service before being honorably discharged. Do I still have reemployment rights at my former job?
- A. — No. To be entitled to these rights a veteran must not have served for more than four years after August 1, 1961. A one year additional voluntary extension of active duty is permitted if it is at the request of and for the convenience of the government.
- Q. — What are the basic rates payable as burial expenses for a deceased veteran?
- A. — Three hundred dollars ($300) if the veteran died from non-service connected conditions, and $1,100 if the veteran died from a service connected cause. Check with your nearest VA regional office for additional details and assistance.
- Q. — What are "discount points" in connection with VA guaranteed home loans?
- A. — "Discount points" is the term used to express the percentage of the loan which the lender requires as a one-time payment to persuade him to make the loan. The purpose of the discount points is to make a Veterans Administration guaranteed loan competitive in the market place for the available mortgage credit.
- Q. — How much is the Veterans Administration clothing allowance for those veterans eligible to receive it?
- A. — The current annual clothing allowance is $240.
- Q. — Can a qualified veteran receive a Veterans Administration guaranteed loan to purchase a condominium?
- A. — Yes, provided the unit is located in a project approved by the Veterans Administration.

Editorial opinions

Senior housing — an area concept

Senior citizens have received the short end of many a stick. And only recently, have our legislators and elected officials turned their attention to the plight of the elderly.

At last week's meeting of the Western Five, Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley came up with a suggestion that could mean good news for our seniors.

Mayor Oakley mentioned that "a centrally-located senior housing complex would be appropriate for the communities associated with the Western 5."

Usually the cities tackle the problem of securing federal funds for such projects on an individual basis. Five communities working together could, we believe, pool their resources and get the job done better than one acting on its own.

A suitable location, the mayor said, would be a site at Haggerty Road and Huron River Drive, now owned by Wayne County. He also suggested that a pharmacy and grocery store possibly could be built on the first floor of the structure to meet federal requirements for convenient shopping by seniors.

We believe that Oakley's idea is worthwhile.

Not enough housing currently exists for our elders. Most senior citizen housing projects throughout the nation are being built with the aid of federal grants. That approach would be right in keeping with the primary reason for formation of Western Five — obtaining state and federal grants for common programs for its five member communities.

Western 5 is made up of the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron and the cities of Belleville and Romulus. Their representatives say they have the ability to secure large loans faster and easier for its collective membership than can be done individually.

We urge the Western Five Board to diligently pursue Oakley's idea. A large senior citizens housing complex to serve the five communities would be a new approach to a very vital problem.

Locked into living on fixed incomes, this badly-needed type of housing can let our elders live in dignity for the few years they have left to enjoy.

Such a centrally-located project would let seniors know that society has not forgotten them and appreciates their contributions to our nation's future.

The Western Five should research and review this plan, with the hopes that it can come to a successful conclusion in the near future.

On the brighter side

A matter of life and death

Suicide — a macabre subject — has been the topic of conversation the past week around our newspaper office.

Our Acting Managing Editor, Tom Mooradian, received a "suicide letter" in which a 19-year-old local girl said she was going to take her own life. It seems the unmarried young woman was pregnant, and the father of her unborn child left her for another woman.

Westland Police, however, said they had received no report of any suicide. Perhaps it was just a prank, someone suggested. If it was a prank, it was the sickest form of "humor" imaginable. If this letter was sincere, it was the most tragic of circumstances.

Suicide is a very serious matter. I guess that's why a column in Monday's Detroit News by Gerry Storch was particularly upsetting to some who read it. "I can't believe he would take such a casual attitude toward such a serious matter," commented a young woman who works in our office. "Jim, you ought to read what he says."

So I did.

And I agree with her assessment. Storch tells about moving into an apartment that had recently been occupied by a man who committed suicide. He describes his feelings about the taking of one's own life and says, in effect, it is an act neither to be exalted nor condemned, as the title of his column suggests. However, two statements by him in his column must be examined under the searchlight of retrospection — especially in my own personal experience.

Storch writes: "Suicide, we must remember, is an active decision." Closing out his article, he pens: "Suicide, I contend, is merely a solution to a problem — a solution that seems best for those who adopt it because that's what they wanted and that's what they believed they should do."

Naturally, Storch has a right to his views. But so do I — and so do you. And, as for me, my experience as a minister, a reporter, mailman, columnist and counselor leads me to believe those two statements can be successfully refuted.

True, suicide is an "active decision." However, I believe that particular "active decision" is made under duress — the mind-shattering pressure that you and I may never understand. Sure, people take their own lives. But why?

To relieve the unbearable pressures that have driven them to uncontrollable despair and somehow start anew.

Secondly, Storch says "suicide is merely a solution." For those of us who are Christians — and I am a contented believer in the Lord Jesus Christ — all life is created in the image of God and therefore sacred. Therefore, it is a serious matter to take anyone's life — even our own. For our body is not our "own" — as some contend — it belongs to God whether we like to admit it or not.

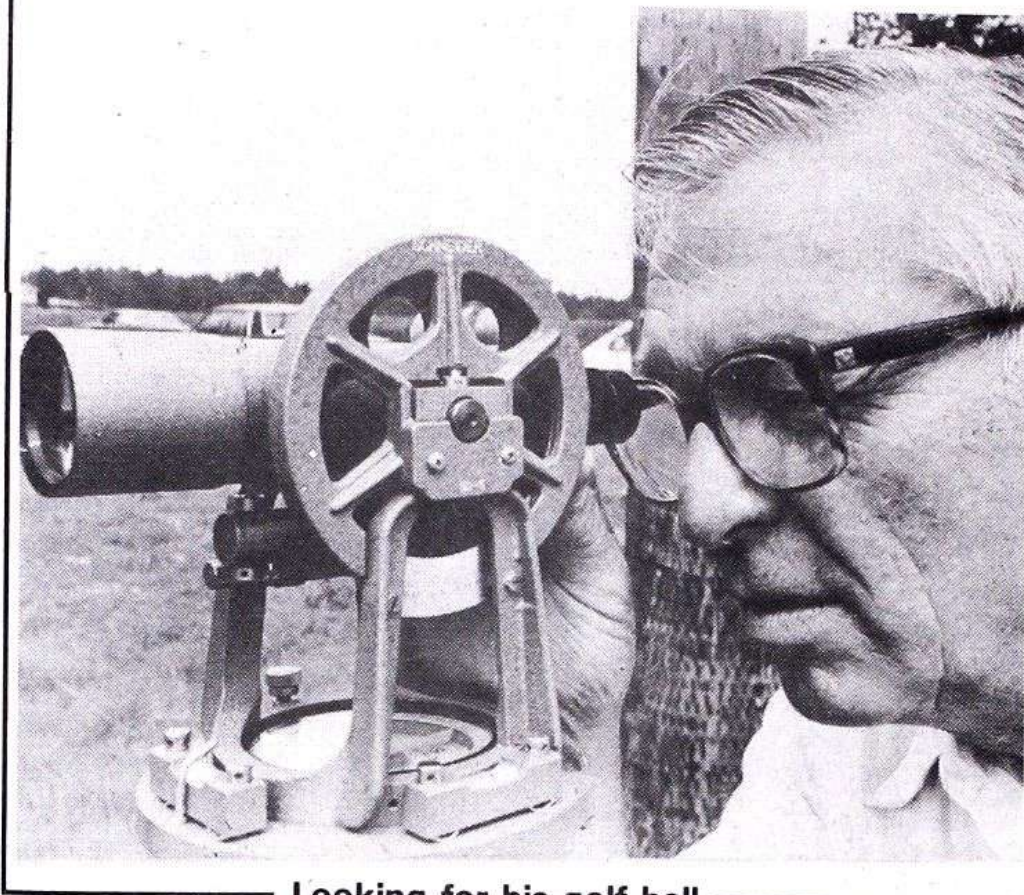

I remember all too well one early spring evening some 22 years ago when I talked on the phone with a distraught man who threatened to commit suicide. "I can't go on living if my wife will not stay with me," sobbed a grown man who had suffered unbearable marital strife, much of his own making.

"I'm going to end it all," he said. We'll call him William (not his real name).

Sexual harassment

An important piece of legislation which received final approval prior to the legislative recess did not, unfortunately, receive the public attention it merits. That bill, H.B. 4407, sponsored by Representative Barbara-Rose Collins (D-Detroit), makes a clear statement regarding state policy on sexual harassment.

The bill defines and prohibits sexual harassment in the areas of employment, public accommodations or public services, education and housing.

Persons, primarily women, who otherwise have been forced to suffer the torment and humiliation of sexual harassment in silence are provided with a greater avenue of protection. Affected persons may file complaints with either their employer, the Michigan Employment Security Commission, the Michigan Department of Civil Rights or the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

In addition, H.B. 4407 amends the state's Civil Rights Act and broadens its coverage to offer protection to a greater number of Michigan citizens.

The passage of this legislation represents a significant victory for all the groups, particularly the women's groups and organized labor, which were committed to the effort and assisted in passage of the bill. Public recognition must go to the statewide Michigan Task Force on Sexual Harassment in the Work Place, a group which was established for the sole purpose of bringing focus and attention to this pervasive problem.

By its action, the Legislature has issued a decisive response to a problem which has been ignored for far too long. Michigan citizens no longer will have to tolerate sexual harassment in their living and work environment.

To compost or not

City officials are expecting a standing room only audience tonight (Wednesday), for a public hearing at Romulus City Hall on the proposal by a Detroit company to build a sewage recovery plant in the city.

According to the city clerk's office, numerous telephone calls have come into the various offices at city hall during the last several days inquiring as to the time of the public hearing.

Considerable controversy has been generated within the community on a proposal by Detroit Recovery of Detroit to build a plant in Romulus that will convert Detroit sewage sludge into fertilizer. Immediately following the public hearing, Detroit is scheduled to present its site plan to the Planning Commission.

Location sought by the firm is 128 acres west of the C & O Railroad and south of Ecorse Road. About 40 acres of the proposed site is now occupied by Mendrek's Commercial Dump.

Some city officials feel, that if the plant construction proves feasible and profitable to the city, that it would be a preferable alternative to the current dumping operation.

But, Romulus, like many other communities where such sewage recovery plants have been proposed, is unsure of the possible consequences and is stiffening its backbone in opposition to the project.

City officials report that some townspeople are protesting that odor from the proposed plant would be objectionable to the nearby area. Also, they feel that their community deserves something better than a sewage sludge recovery plant.

Detroit, in its efforts to educate city officials and local citizens on the conversion of sludge into fertilizer recently took more than 20 persons to Beltsville, Md., where the federal government operates a similar type operation.

Upon returning from the trip, some persons said a strong odor did emanate from the Beltsville plant and indicated they would not want that smell in Romulus.

Another pointed out, however, that sludge at the Maryland plant is allowed to drain into the soil, in sharp contrast to what Detroit has in mind. The Detroit firm would have sludge drain onto a concrete foundation and run off into sewer lines.

On the plus side, Detroit's proposal could provide Romulus with a source of revenue that could reach several hundred thousand dollars annually. Before that point is reached, many factors have to be reviewed, including legality of the city being able to accept the yearly payments from Detroit.

Also, approval of county, state and federal agencies must be obtained before the sewage recovery plant could be constructed.

Why?

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

Wasn't it George Bernard Shaw who wrote: "Youth is wasted on youth"?

Why did that thought race across my mind as a perturbed Wayne woman described what vandals did at Glenwood Cemetery over the weekend?

"The damage is terrible," the woman related. "God, why do they do things like that? Some of those stones can never be replaced. It's a shame, just a shame."

What the weather and storms over the decades had failed to do — erase the memory of those buried in that cemetery — the vandals apparently had accomplished. Someone — or many someones — had entered the cemetery and proceeded to desecrate the lots. They toppled tombstones — broke many of them — and indiscriminately went about their dirty business.

"It had to be kids," said a Wayne police officer. "There was nothing of value in there. So why the hell would anyone go through all that trouble if it weren't kids?"

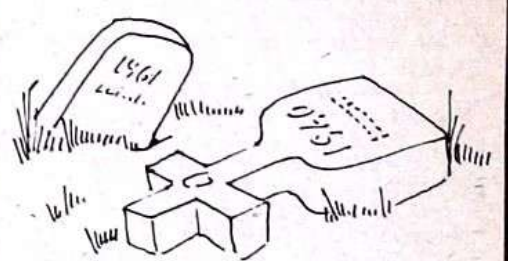

And I figured that that generation which was unable to find its way, was left back in a time capsule of the sixties and seventies. Youth of the eighties are supposed to know better, aren't they?

I know the above sounds as if I am portraying all youth as reckless — it isn't my intention to do so. No one can hurt the dead, but these vandals, by their actions, have inflicted hurt on the living. And, unfortunately, I know that I can never reach those who did this damage.

But should we remain a passive observer? Maybe the parents of those who are responsible take time to read, and through them, maybe we can reach those who unleashed their frustrations on the dead.

I would suggest to these vandals to please read our "Letter Box." There is a note from a youth who lived in this area, who would like to return to this area. Unfortunately he is serving time in prison.

Hurt others and eventually, inevitably, you'll pay for it.
That is, if you live long enough.

Enough of this gloom and doom. Let me share this gem with you.

Asked whom I would elect President of the United States if the elections were held today, I replied, "Billy Carter."

"You mean, Jimmy Carter, don't you?" the interviewer asked.

"No, I mean Billy Carter. Can you name me one other person who has been able to get back any of the foreign aid we have doled out over the past century?"

Someone needs you

EDITOR — This is to the woman who sent the suicide note to your newspaper. If you're contemplating suicide, please don't. I don't know who you are and you probably don't know me, but I want you and anyone else who is thinking about suicide to read the following message.

I know that right at this very moment you feel that there is no way out of your problem(s). You want to kill yourself maybe as a punishment to someone or as a way out of some terrible situation, but why don't you think ahead just for a minute?

You mention you have a child. Who is gonna raise that child? Who is gonna walk him/her to kindergarten or kiss, love or praise the child? Sure your child will be taken care of by its grandparents or some foster agency, but it is your child and you will need each other for a very long time. You can't just disappear. Don't you want to know how your child will turn out? Just try and keep yourself together for a little longer, maybe you don't feel needed but there is someone who needs you. At some point in everybody's life there is a time when they feel that it is all over.

No fairness in paving

EDITOR — I agree with Westland Councilman Nancy Neal, who questioned the fairness (of reconsideration in 80-P-31), when the other paving districts in Phase III were not afforded similar opportunity.

Why be fair now? Does someone special live in that district? Not just Phase III but Phase II should be included.

According to this newspaper, Westland Councilman Griffin told the council that no other districts affected asked for reconsideration before the time limit expired. 80-P-20 did ask, not one councilman who voted for our paving (5 for - 1 absent) would reopen the discussion. So just what can you do?

You ask to have it reopened but the final vote on that lies with the council. What is their motive for overruling the majority of land owners in this district?

Is it someone special again? The voice of the people just isn't heard. Majority rule seems only to exist on a council vote, not on the homeowners. If the Westland City Council is not representing the people, then who are they representing?

Making waves on pool plan

EDITOR — The Wayne City Council has come up with a plan to spend four million dollars for a covered, wave-action pool. A few years ago our school system wanted to put a pool in every junior high school. That was defeated.

We should defeat this, too. It will add as much as $25. on to our yearly tax and probably more. How many retirees who pay that added tax will make use of the pool?

I can see everyone having a hand in paying for education for that is the world's future, but this pool?

When they opened the ice rink I bought a pair of skates and went over to learn to skate. Who was there, the kids — hockey. I wanted to take karate, who was there, the kids. No room for the older people.

Now they have how much time? I take my granddaughter to the pool, its always full of kids. Both sides, (the wading pool and the big pool). At this time, inflation, recession, outlook for future not any better — building a new pool is a luxury that the poor, retired, or any of us can't afford. Let us renovate the old ones. This time do a good job.

More waves

EDITOR — I see the boys on the Wayne Council want us to buy them a new swimming hole.

Well, I don't think they know that most of us in this town are out of work. But I think I know the reason they don't know. They don't care about us.

Now I know the Ladies at the Library can read, so maybe if they would take a newspaper over to the City Council and read it to them, the Council would know what is going on out here in the Real World.

'Branch office' says thanks

EDITOR — I would like to add my personal "Thank You" to the city residents who supported and assisted our city crews in bringing storm damage debris to our dump site behind City Hall.

I would also like to publicly thank all the men and women in the Department of Public Service and Parks and Recreation Department who have worked long hours in an effort to clean up the hardest hit areas. I am very proud of the conscientious effort these employees have made and the tremendous support the citizens have contributed to this clean up project.

The results of our plea for citizen help resulted in 1,354 loads of branch debris being brought to the dump site on Saturday and Sunday by the citizens and our crews.

A special "Thanks" to all the volunteers and merchants who contributed to this project.

In conclusion, I would like to assure all citizens that we will continue to work diligently towards a complete city wide cleanup.

Prisoner asks for pen pals

EDITOR — I am writing to you because I was born in Inkster, but my parents moved away when I was in the 4th grade. My parents were killed in a automobile accident when I was 16.

I lived in a foster home until I was 18. I am now in prison and have never felt more lonely in my life.

I don't have anyone to write to not anyone to write to me. I believe that some of my relatives still live in or around Inkster and I thought that if maybe you could find the kindness in your heart to publish my letter in your newspaper maybe some of my relatives or someone who knew them might write to me.

I would also like to write to anyone as a pen-pal who lives in or around Inkster. I am a white male but loneliness picks no certain age. And if there is anyone who reads this who is lonely and who would like a friend to share a smile with from time to time please write and I will answer.

Migration of 'The Birds'

EDITOR — Several years ago, I wrote you about Costa Rica and our planned retirement there (my husband is retired Navy). You asked that I write again, when settled, but I have been so busy living I haven't had the time!

However, today, listening to the news...gloom, wars, energy, crises, the shrinking dollar and poor Jimmy Carter...it occurred to me your readers might enjoy the second episode in the "Saga of the Birds."

We moved, bag, baggage, grandmother, teenagers and all, to Costa Rica four years ago and have been happily settled in Rancho Maricosta. Our experiences deserve a book. They have not only been exciting but, at times, hilarious. The only flaw was our inability to find easily-accessible, registered beach property. Probably a blessing in disguise. It made us look to Columbia (another democratic republic, where, it turned out, it cost even less to live than Costa Rica).

There we found Palmas de Oro, a lovely, old coconut plantation on the Caribbean. And, to complete its unique setting, when we looked away from the sea we saw, towering over everything, 19,000 feet high and snow-capped, majestic Mount Columbus of the Sierra Nevada.

It may be had to believe...hundreds of green palms, blue sky and ocean, pounding surf and golden sand, snow-capped mountains...but it is all there in Palmas de Oro; on the Pan American Highway near Santa Marta, oldest and most fascinating city in all of the Americas.

So, now we have two loves: our ranch in Costa Rica and beach in Colombia. We feel we have discovered a new, exciting American frontier and are eager to share our find with others. (If you think you are too old for adventure, we are 59 and 63 and both of us have battled and, so far, conquered cancer!) Write us at P.O. Box 157, Liberia, Guanacaste, Costa Rica and send your letters by international air mail (25c per half-ounce). We promise to answer.

Now, from Latin America, we wish you salud (health), dinero (wealth) and amor (love)!

Reflections

Suddenly, I was a senior citizen

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

It was a bright sunny day, the day I turned into a senior citizen. A soft breeze was puffing the window curtains out into the room, and I was curled upon my bed, my head throbbing from the curlers, trying to ignore the buzzing of the alarm, when the man I promised to love and cherish, grabbed me and pulled me to the floor.

"C'mon," he shouted. "Today is the day."

"I'm not going," I mumbled. "You have to go! Today you are 62! You are a senior citizen. You are eligible for your social security."

It wasn't as though I hadn't known it was coming. Things had been happening to indicate that my youth was scrambling out of the window of life and I was joining the regiments of the aged, if not actually right in there.

For instance the day I went into a strange pharmacy to get a prescription filled. Actually two prescriptions. Two simple prescriptions that held no secret complications. Two innocuous little pills which would help me breathe better, smell better and see better when the ragweed was bent on torture.

The young pharmacist brought the bottles to me and setting one down on the counter, he lifted the other close to my eyes, and pointing out each word with his index finger, read the instructions carefully, pronouncing each word as a kindergarten teacher does for her little ones.

Then smiling at me with that certain kindness one reserves for the elderly, he asked if I understood. My feelings were ambivalent. One part of me wanted to grab that little bottle and shove it down his throat, and the other part of me wanted to quiver out a gentle "No, would you read it again, please?"

Naturally, I didn't do either one. Instead I paid him and turned around and bumped into a real Senior Citizen who was pretty gallant about it all, after he had picked up his cane and pushed his glasses back on his nose.

Then, there was the time I was daydreaming when the light turned green and I hadn't seen the end of my daydream. A loud tooting put an end to that dream, and a bright red sports car whipped around me, and a voice bellowed out from the bush it was hiding in. "Get a move on Granny!" I gave him an obscene gesture I had picked up from one of my kids, and that act did a lot for the good of my soul ... at that moment.

So you see, it wasn't as if becoming a senior citizen had crept up on me unbeknownst.

I let my husband pick me up off the floor where I had landed when he pulled me out of bed, and I let him drag me into the social security office. I denied everything they said, but my husband who thinks truth is better than lies had brought all kinds of documentary evidence, like birth certificates and all that, and finally I was a full fledged acknowledged senior citizen.

I went from there to my hair-dresser. Right on the wall she had a notice, "20 percent off for Senior Citizens." But I didn't ask for it. Instead I asked for a bright, new color which would look like wheat in the sun, and she gave me something that looked like chaff blown in the wind. Nevertheless, I felt younger.

That is I felt younger until I went to the movie. On the window was a sign, "$3.50 for adults; $2.50 for senior citizens; $1.50 for students." "One adult," I said, slipping my five dollar bill through the window. The change came back and counted out as $2.50.

"I think you have made a mistake," I told her.

Chomping on her gum, she dragged one long, pointed finger from where it had been drumming on the counter, and pointed it to the second line of the posted notice.

"It's $2.50 for senior citizens," she harrumphed, and went back to chomping her gum and drumming her fingernails with complete indifference to the disintegrating personality crumbling before her.

Noisy neighbors

By CAROL PREMO, Ph.D.

DEAR CAROL,

I have a problem with my neighbor. I live in a very nice subdivision and everyone is fussy about their lawns and very considerate of one another. That is, until the house next to me was sold last year. My new neighbor is very inconsiderate in that he has rented his house to very loud and inconsiderate and messy people. Not noisy enough to call the police, but enough to upset all the neighbors. He does not seem to care that his rental property is part of a neighborhood and we all have a vested interest in who he rents to. He does not seem to care.

I am sure I sound overly picky but it really has become a problem. I have talked to him and nothing seems to happen. What should I do next?

Wants a Nice Neighbor

DEAR 'NEIGHBOR',

As I see it there are two viable options which remain open to you. The first is to talk with the tenants. Since talking to the landlord was to no avail, go right to the source of the irritation.

In a friendly, congenial and polite manner explain your problem. Keep in mind that honey generally holds a greater attraction than vinegar.

The second option is the police. What makes you feel the noise isn't great enough to call them? What is the decibel level required in your neighborhood to be considered a nuisance?

Since your neighbors agree about the irritation, you could also start a petition drive to establish ordinances governing situations such as these.

Just don't give up and don't let yourself be bulldozed but keep trying. It seems to me we occasionally need a little more peace and quiet in our lives.

DEAR CAROL,

I come under much criticism about my work habits. You could call me a workaholic. I enjoy my work a great deal. I generally work 12-15 hours a day. I am single, in my mid-twenties and healthy. There are many things I plan to accomplish.

People treat me like a freak — like I do not have the inner resources to do things other than work. As if work were so unimportant and uninteresting. I do have other interests, however, working is a major interest.

Why does a strong work ethic and desire to succeed attract so many detractors.

Workaholic

DEAR WORKAHOLIC,

You certainly do not sound like a freak. You are very fortunate to enjoy your job. The facts seem to be that your job is challenging, rewarding and stimulating.

In this day, many jobs do not have these components and as a result your colleagues or peers may not be experiencing the same motivation.

Your comments about "accomplishing things" shows an ability to focus your energy and time, making your goals easier to reach. This process may make you appear overly zealous about working when compared to people who have no goals.

On the other hand a person who works hard should play just as hard. Allowing time for other activities and interests is also an important aspect of a well rounded person.

I wish you well, it sounds like you have all the ingredients for a successful career.

A matter of life and death

"But William, you can't take your own life, it will not solve anything," I pleaded through the tears and helplessness that gripped my soul. "You will be going from the frying pan into the fire," I cautioned.

The next day I received a call at the post office where I worked at the time and was requested to come quickly to a certain address. My worst fears were realized when I was met by a sobbing wife who told me her husband, William, had committed suicide in his garage.

Two Wayne County Sheriff officers led me to the garage. There in his front car seat — his head drooped back in grotesque fashion — lay the body of William. His face was distorted in anguish—even though he apparently died quietly among the beer bottles he had emptied and the carbon monoxide fumes.

One of the officers, thinking I had gone out of the garage, closed the large double door and I was left in the eerie darkness — alone with William's lifeless body, and my own thoughts. In those few moments I seemed to understand in a much fuller way the value of life — and the inevitable frustrations and pressures that cause people to snuff it out like a candle.

"I'm terribly sorry, Reverend," the burly officer apologized as he opened the garage door. "I thought you had come out of the garage."

"That's all right," I replied, "it gave me a few moments to think and to grasp the enormous significance of the situation." Strolling out of the stale, putrid shadows of death into the bright afternoon sunshine, I appreciated more fully the gift of life.

I realized to a much greater extent that William's "active" choice was one he was driven to by pressures he had brought upon himself. I also realized then—and even more now—that it was no solution to his problems.

I do not condemn people who commit suicide—for for who of us comprehends the frantic pressures that drive them to extinguish their own lives? Neither do I "accept" the theory that suicide is "merely a solution to a problem"—as Mr. Storch contends—much like taking a large eraser and removing a person from the face of the earth.

As frail human beings, we all have crises and pressures in our lives that drive us to the brink of despair. It's especially comforting, at times like that, to have a loving, forgiving God to turn to.

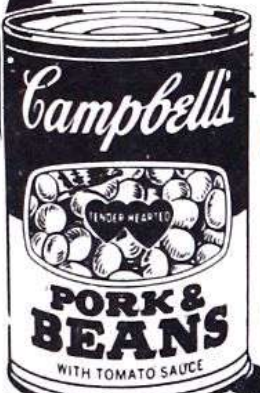

Instead of death, I believe we should choose life and heed the promise of Psalm 16:11: "Thou wilt show me the path of life: in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand are pleasures for evermore."

100 golfers compete in Westland's inaugural junior tourney

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

They look no bigger than young caddies — and some don't even seem strong enough to tote a heavy golf bag.

But they shoot better than many duffers who have been struggling for years.

"There are some really good players among the youngsters," said Paddy Lynn of Westland Parks and Recreation who directed the inaugural Westland Junior Open Golf Tournament last week. "I was very pleasantly surprised at their outstanding talent."

But one look at the scores over the 2,860-yard, par 34 Westland Municipal Golf Course verified their ability. Some 50 youngsters ages 11-16 attacked the 9-hole course with intensity and trophies were handed out to first and second place winners in three boys' age divisions and one girls' age bracket.

Overall medalist was Dave Clark, champion in the 13-14 division, who notched five pars and a birdie in his three over par 37. The slender golfer was a little nervous starting out and shot a two over par six on the par 4, 380-yard opening hole. But the double bogey was the youngster's only real problem all day, even though he bogeyed both par 3 holes — number 2 and 7. He parred holes 3, 4, 5 and 6, birdied the 370-yard 8th hole and parred the 9th.

In the young teenager's scintillating round, he seven 4's, one three and a six. Ken Clark, no relation to Dave, carded a 43 for runner up honors in the 13-14 bracket. Ken parred only the par four 8th hole, but strung six 5's to begin his round and had a bogey 4 on the 8th hole before closing out with a five on the 9th hole.

Winner of the boys' 15-16 division was Erin Shapako, who led a field of 25 competitors. Bob Waters had consecutive double-bogey 6's on the third and fourth holes and was one stroke off the championship pace with 40.

Shapako birdied the first and 7th holes and parred the 3rd, 4th and 9th for his first place trophy. Meanwhile, Waters carded five pars, including regulation figures on the last three holes and only 13 putts in his round. Shapako's 39 included 18 putts.

In the youngest age bracket — 11-12 — Alfred Varga, Jeff Anderson and Daryl Hooley all fired 50's to forge a 3-way tie for the title. On the first "sudden death" playoff hole — the par 4, 380-yard first — Varga won the championship with a five, while runnerup Anderson had a six and Hooley finished with an eight.

The Varga family had a lot to cheer about as young Danielle Varga — Alfred's sister — won the girls' 11-12 age group with a 53. Sue Manore finished second with a 71, just two strokes better than third place Tracy Rickards.

The winner and runnerup in each division won trophies donated by co-sponsors Burger King and Westland Parks and Recreation Department.

The Sports Meridian

Great Lakes conference still alive

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

To paraphrase Mark Twain, the death of the Great Lakes 8 Conference is a bit premature.

Rumors had been circulating in these parts that financially-troubled Taylor was going to withdraw from the conference, leaving it a four-school league.

"That is not true," said Bill Hawley, athletic director at Wayne Memorial. "As far as we know Taylor Center and Taylor Truman will fulfill its athletic commitments to this league."

"I know that there have been a lot of rumors about the demise of the league, but as far as we're concerned it will continue. I personally feel it is one of the better athletic conferences in the area."

The Great Lakes will definitely lose Class B powerhouse Riverview which has opted to leave the Class A dominated league. Riverview will compete in the eight-team Huron Conference beginning next month.

But with the school money supply dwindling because of inflation and over-all salary hikes, don't be surprised to see more and more schools cutting back on athletic programs and extra-curricular activities.

It's inevitable. When the money is not there school boards usually come back with recommendations of eliminating "the excesses". And, unfortunately, prep sports is slowly becoming a luxury that most school districts can't afford.

By the way, The Associated Newspapers will present its annual Prep Football Preview next week. Although some neighboring school districts may have decided not to field football teams, all in the ANP area will be represented by teams this season.

Wrestling fans must have been peeking over into Rudy Williams' backyard on Sunday — and for many a good reason. Williams, a six time Greco-Roman national champ, and his wife, "Sweetie" were host to the Michigan Wrestling Club's annual picnic.

And some of the national and international wrestling greats were in Romulus to attend the gathering. Among the prominent included Tom Minkel and John Mathews. Both made the United States Olympic Greco Roman Olympic Wrestling team, but thanks to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the subsequent declaration by President Carter not to send American athletes to the Moscow Olympics, the two world class athletes were denied an opportunity to compete for the Olympic Gold.

Minkel, who is a 149.5 pounder, and Mathews, a 163-pounder, however were presented medals by the Olympic Committee for making the U.S. team. The two wrestlers are Eastern Michigan University assistant coaches.

"I've never seen so many world and national class wrestlers in one spot," said Wayne Memorial's John Wood. "You have to be impressed by these people. In the group, there were some German as well as Japanese wrestlers at the fete."

Dean Rockwell, who is the president of the Michigan Wrestling Club, also was in presence. Rockwell is a Michigan Hall of Famer whose contributions in wrestling and track have earned for him a niche in the prestigious "Hall".

Did any of the group discuss the Moscow Olympics and the U.S. chances of winning the title?

"You know that's something we didn't discuss," Wood said. "We weren't there for politics — just to enjoy ourselves."

Studio wins 'A' title

Studio Lounge broke a four-inning scoreless deadlock by scoring three runs in the bottom of the fifth and hung on to win a narrow 4-3 decision over Johnny's Shell.

The close victory enabled Studio's to walk off the diamond with the Westland Parks and Recreation women's Class A softball title.

Johnny's came back and scored twice in its sixth, but losing pitcher Cheryl Schaffer gave up a run in the bottom of that inning which proved to be fatal.

Miss Schaffer was tagged for eight hits, giving up two apiece to Lynn Korte and Kim Brostek, Jackie Randall also tagged her for a run-scoring triple.

Karen Trayner chalked up the victory. She tossed a five-hitter with Debbie Mazurek, Karen Austin and Darlene Pierson each accounting for singles and scoring one run apiece.

In an earlier contest, pitcher Sue Chopp blanked Alberta Thomas as Johnny's posted a 5-0 shutout over their rivals. Chopp scattered two hits — a single to Cindy Lillis and a double to Shelly Arner.

Janine Croskey took the loss. Her nemesis was Ann Kolnitz who rapped three singles and drove in two runs. Beth Johnson had a single and a double, while Karen Austin's double accounted for an RBI.

Romulus plans men's softball tournament

With the regular and playoff softball season just about completed, the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department is planning yet another softball bonanza for softball teams and fans.

The recreation department announced this week that it is organizing a men's softball tournament for Class B and under teams to be staged at its Elmer Johnson Park.

The tournament will be held during the weekend of Sept. 20.

To be eligible, a team must have participated in a recreation league during the 1980 season and will be required to roster only those players who participated during the regular season.

No pick up players — that is players from other teams — will be allowed to round out a team's roster.

Fees are $80 for registration and there is a $6.50 game umpire fee. Teams must also bring one game ball (per game).

Romulus teams and teams from neighboring communities are invited to take part. Entries are limited, so the registration will be filled on a first come, first serve basis.

For further information, please contact the recreation department offices at 941-0666, extension 254.

Close call for champs

Alberta's wins championship

Dad's Club made WADA-Alberta Thomas sweat it out before handing over the Westland Community Organizational League softball title to the challengers, 9-5.

Alberta struck for three runs in the first inning and built up a 6-0 lead over the Dads and losing pitcher Norm Swope before the league runner-up came alive.

The Dads cut the margin with a 4-run spree in the bottom of the third, but the champs put the game away by scoring three times in the top of the seventh.

Swope was tagged for 17 hits, three of those by Randy Clark who scored three times and drove in one run. Steve Perrie and Brian Krist split four singles.

Winner Dave Gillies gave up a pair of run-scoring hits to John Lasecki and also doubled. Mike Paz checked in with three hits while Mike Moore had two.

To reach the finals the Dads knocked off JC's-Carinci's 19-13 as Swope picked up the victory. He received ample hitting support from Dave Gorshek who hammered a pair of homers, two singles and accounted for seven RBIs. Dick Kolnits and Andy Dailey each had three hits with Dailey also chasing in three runs off of loser Chuck Menzies.

Mike Mushett and Menzies split six hits between them and Don Herbert had two for the losers.

In their first encounter, WAOA Albert's posted a 24-hit, 1980 victory over the Dads in the quarterfinal round. Bob Kost, the winning pitcher, gave up a total of 16 hits again it was Dailey who paced the attack.

Daily doubled and had three

Dolphins boast 21 state swim champs

With Eric Head and Mary Batterson winning three gold medals, Wayne Dolphins' Swim Club returned from Wyoming, Michigan, site of the 1980 Michigan Parks and Recreation Swimming Championships, with a total of 21 state champions.

"It's the best we've done at the state," said Dolphin Coach Jim McPartlin, "and it shows that the program here is improving greatly."

"These kids also had an undefeated dual meet season during the summer and won the Suburban Swimming League championship," McPartlin said.

The Dolphins picked up gold medals in the 10-year-old and under category thanks to Dan White, Mac Sims, Scott Phillips and Dennis Jones.

In the 13-14 age bracket, golds went to Brian Byndas, Clarence Crummy, Tim White, and Mike Greuber.

In the 15-17 year old age category, Miss Batterson and Head earned three gold medals. Teammates who also won first place medals included Mary Jo Mason, Lou Miles, Sandy Burns, Dee Discher, Karen Van Keuren, Kris Johnston, Catherine Batterson, Mike Soules, Scott Martin and Alan Jones.

An excellent swim season

Dolphins took part in the annual parks and recreation state championships and returned with 21 state championships. The competitions were hosted recently by the Wyoming Parks and Recreation Department.

California is 3-0 winner

Special playoffs determine Westland 'B' softball champ

It couldn't have ended any closer than it did in Westland Class B women's softball league.

Three teams — California Sandwich, Token Lounge and Geanne's Gems — each sported 11-4 won-lost records, forcing the issue into a special playoff series.

And, California Sandwich, with a rare pitching shutout effort by Lynn Dupek stunned Token Lounge 3-0 to chalk up the crucial victory and the league championship.

Dupek scattered three Token hits, two of those going to Kathy Jackery. Kathy Goode got the other, a harmless single.

California got to loser June Evans for three runs in the second inning, then Evans settled down and gathered goose eggs the rest of the night. Evans had her problems with Bunny Walker, Mary Watson and Nancy Jimenez.

Jimenez' double chased home two runs, while Walker collected a pair of two-baggers and Watson laced two singles.

Token qualified for the championship round by earning a hard-fought 1-0 victory over a stubborn and well-trained Geanne's Gems contingent.

Token scored what proved to be the winning run in the first inning off of loser Mary Hulea who gave up four hits, two less than winner Evans. Kathy Goode's double produced the only run in the game.

Alyson Wilkins and Mary Rayburn got the only hits for the winners.

Evans gave up a couple of singles to Jennifer McNulty while Bev

Liverance and Nancy Gravino each had singled.

The three teams — California Sandwich, Token Lounge and Geanne's Gems — will be joined by the Jock Shop to play for the Class B playoff crown which got underway earlier in the week.

singles for two RBIs. Gorshek turned in with a pair of singles and two runs batted in, while mate Swope had a single and triple.

Mike Moore, the loser, gave up three hits to Dennis Shields and two RBIs and three singles to Marty Blevins. Mike Deleo had the only homer of the game. He also singled and chased in three runs.

Alberta's had a field day with JC's in the first round as it battered their rivals 30-2 on a 28-hit assault. Chuck Anzalone connected for three hits, including a triple, while Randy Clark had a double and triple and three RBIs and Bob Kaump belted a single and double.

Gillies, the winner, scattered six hits and missed a shutout when the JC's got on the scoreboard on the fifth inning. Jim Pool's double drove in one run while loser, Chuck Pickering, also collected an RBI single.

Flat Rock winds down race season

The Flat Rock Speedway Late Model point race is getting quite close as the season winds down, and Saturday night Chuck Roumell of Brooklyn, Michigan looks like the man to beat as he gunned his Kelly's Body Shop Camaro to the 30 lap ARCA Late Model feature win. Roumell trailed Jim Terrill by only 10 points going into Saturday. Bob Keselowski, Michigan was third, John Briggs of Ypsilanti, Michigan was fourth, and Joy Fair of Pontiac, Michigan was fifth.

Eddy was the top qualifier with a 12:08. Lance Olsen of Detroit took his first dash win ever at Flat Rock. Heat winners were Bob Fox of Madison Heights, Michigan, Pat Haywood of Taylor, Michigan, and Craig Jackson of Romulus, Michigan. The pursuit went to Roumell, and the consolation winner was Chuck Silva of Dearborn Heights, Michigan.

Dave Miller of Dearborn Heights came up with his first feature win in the Figure 8 this season.

Village Bar crowned Wayne Class B champs

Key link in World Series

Westland's Derrick Dowling views the diamond from third base after getting aboard on a single. Dowling, a 12-year-old who played the regular season with the WYAA's Broncos, was picked up by Dearborn Heights Crestwood and helped Crestwood reach the semi-finals of the Pee Wee World Series. Derrick hurled a one-hitter, struck out eight and shut out pre-tournament title favorite Montebello, California, 2-0. The Westlanders finished second best in the state.

Ex-Glenn star in backup QB role

Suida eyes varsity berth at Ferris

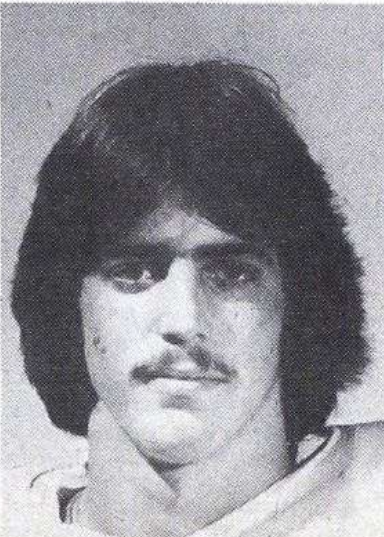

Rob Suida, a 1979 graduate of John Glenn High School, will perform back-up quarterbacking duties for Coach Nick Coao and the 1980 Ferris State College football team.

Suida, a 6-foot-1, 183-pound sophomore, saw spot signal calling action in an injury-riddled freshman campaign.

This year, he will serve as the primary back-up to senior quarterback Bill Costner. Suida was an all-league and honorable mention all-stater as a prep football senior, and also lettered on his high school baseball team.

He is the son of Westland's Theodore and Delphine Suida.

Ferris State, which opens its season Sept. 6 at home against St. Joseph's College, is out to improve on last year's 5-4-1 record and third place finish in the Great Lakes Conference.

Chendening's grand slam does Farm Bureau in, 7-5

Rolly Chendening's grand slam homer lifted Village Bar to a 7-5 victory over the Farm Bureau and to the Wayne Class B men's softball championship.

Close all of the way, Village Bar erupted for four runs in the first inning, but the Farm Bureau came back and scored once in the first, twice in the second and put one run on the board in each of the third and fifth innings which kept the outcome of the game in doubt until the final frame.

Chendening's homer came in the first inning off of loser Bob Clemens.

Village also had its hands full with a stubborn Possums' club which blew a 4-0 first inning lead before yielding 12-10. Village Bar came up with two runs in the third inning, went ahead 6-4 in the fourth then the two teams exchanged two runs in the fifth and four runs in the sixth.

Jim Johnson, the winning pitcher, helped his cause with three hits, one going for a triple. He also batted in two runs. Doug Bandy and Tom McGlade each split four hits.

Johnson delivered 17 hits, two more than loser Tom Sommervil who was charged with the loss. Ken Sova latched on to four singles and three RBIs while Chris Hawthorne laced a homer, double, single and drove in five runs for the losers. Larry Kelamen, Jim Morton and Mike Conn each collected two hits.

In other Class C confrontations, the Jaycees explored for seven runs in the third inning and went on to bury the Farm Bureau 12-3. Benny Rice and John Aber split the pitching chores for the winners, who received an excellent hitting effort out of Mark Lambert.

U of D is team to beat in playoffs

U of D remains the class of the Wayne "B" softball league.

Pounding the Rangers 19-8, U of D came back to edge a tough Burrough's squad 6-4 to remain undefeated in post-season play.

Jeff Hogan twirled three-innings of no-hit ball, before giving up two runs to Burroughs. Burroughs had the hits — 12 of them — but not at the right time.

Loser Wayne Quick was tagged for 10 safeties with Norm Beasley and Mike Workman each collecting two.

In U of D's 19-8 slaughter of the Rangers, Beasley hammered a homer, triple and two singles which accounted for five RBIs. John Petry and winning pitcher Jeff Hogan each had three hits off of loser Ted Rize who also gave up a pair of hits each to Ron Bernard and Mark Paget.

Hogan was rapped for a homer and a single by Chuck Strum who counted three runs batted in for the day.

In another Class B confrontation, the Rangers edged J & D Auto 4-3 as Ted Rize and Jack Dalton combined on a three hitter. Deadlocked 2-all after the first inning, the Rangers went ahead 3-2 in the fourth and 4-2 in the sixth before J & D put its last run on the board in the sixth.

Jack Stillwagon paced the Rangers' hitting attack with two singles and an RBI.

Westland crowns its golf champions

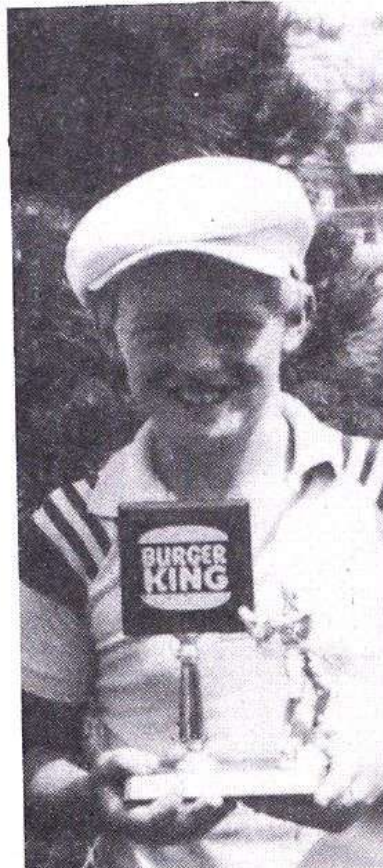

Tourney medalist

Dave Clark (second from right) fired a blazing 37 to win 13-14 age honors and registered the lowest score in the first annual Westland Junior Open Golf tournament that drew 50 entrants. Ken Clark (no relation) carded a 43 to finish second in his division and the two are shown receiving their trophies from Stephen Polsinelli, manager of a local Burger King restaurant, (left) and Charles Pickering, assistant director of Westland Parks and Recreation. Burger King and Westland Parks and Recreation Department co-sponsored the event which had competition in four divisions: boys, 11-12; girls, 11-12; and boys in age brackets 13-14 and 15-16.

Golfing family

Golfing talent runs in the Varga family of St. Clair Shores and it was demonstrated vividly last week when Danielle Varga (left) won the girls' 11-12 age bracket and her brother, Alfred, took honors in the boys' division of the same age group. Danielle is shown here with the first place trophy she earned by shooting 53 over the 9-hole test. Sue Manore (right) came in second in the age group with a 73.

Early bird

Alfred Varga (above) defeated Jeff Anderson and Daryl Hooley in a 3-way playoff to win the boys' 11-12 age division title after the trio finished with 50.

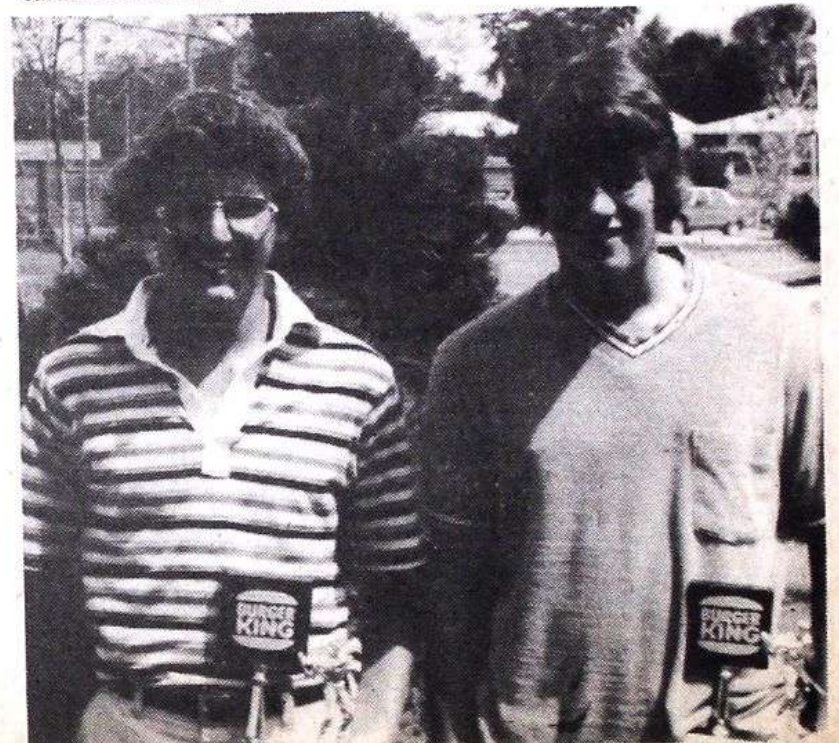

Near miss

Jeff Anderson receives his runnerup trophy from Charles Pickering, assistant director of Westland Parks and Recreation, after shooting a six on the playoff hole to finish one stroke behind Alfred Varga, who carded a five on the "sudden death" hole. Daryl Hooley, who tied with Jeff and Alfred for first place with 50 after nine holes, had an eight on the playoff hole to finish third in the boys' 11-12 age division at Westland Municipal Golf Course.

Bright future

Athletes are starting out earlier than ever to pursue fame and fulfillment on the links. Erin Shapako (left) fired a 39 to win the boys' age 15-16 division of Westland's first annual junior Open Golf Tournament over nine holes at Westland Municipal Golf Course last week. Bob Waters (right) made a valiant effort before finishing with a 40, just one stroke behind the champ.

Terry L. Rohler, Rita E. Kosiñ exchange double ring vows

A three-day honeymoon in New Orleans, La. followed the July 26 wedding of Rita Elizabeth Kosiñ and Terry Lee Rohler who exchanged double ring vows at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The Rev. Raymond S. Skoneý presided at the four o'clock rite before some 150 assembled relatives and friends including the young couple's parents, Chester and Mary Kosiñ of 14167 Elwell Rd., Belleville, and Richard and Rose Rohler of 34031 Huron River Dr., New Boston.

Music for the occasion included

"Nadia's Theme", "Let There Be Peace on Earth", and "Joy" played by Dave Carnahan.

Entering the church with her father, Rita was gowned in an A-line creation of white knitted chiffon edged in antique Brussels lace sprinkled with seed pearls and sequins. The bodice featured a crown collar and deep lace yoke forming a shoulder capelet. She wore lace-trimmed gauntlet gloves and an English riding hat embellished with matching lace and chiffon rosettes to which her chapel-length veil was secured. Completing her bridal finery was a cascade bouquet of peach snowdrift mums, stephanotis and greenery.

As her best friend's maid of honor, Cathy Yonovich of New Boston donned a peach empire-style gown designed with a fitted bodice accented with a wide ruffled collar which fell into a soft capelet over the shoulders. A wide ruffle at the hem continued up the back of the skirt to form an apron effect. She wore a comb of peach daisies in her hair and held a Spanish lace fan with a peach daisy corsage attached.

The quartet of bridesmaids in identical attire included two sisters of the bride, Mary and Patricia Kosiñ of Belleville; Linda Tiffany of Romulus and the bridegroom's sister, Lori Rohler of New Boston.

Larry Akers of Dearborn was best man and groomsmen were Mark Rohler of Dearborn Heights, brother of the bridegroom; Randy Pielecha of Dearborn; Peter Teaslie of Belleville, and Chester Kosiñ III of Belleville, the bride's brother.

At the PNA Lodge, where the dinner-dance reception was held, Mrs. Kosiñ greeted the 225 guests in a jade gown of qiana to which she pinned her corsage of peach daisies and carnations. Similar flowers were worn on the teal polyester seersucker gown which the bridegroom's mother wore for the occasion.

A 1975 graduate of Belleville High School, the bride has been a draftsman for the past seven years at Lincoln Park Engineering in Romulus where her husband works as a machinist. A Dearborn High School alumnus, class of 1976, the bridegroom and his family lived in Houston, Texas for two years during which he worked in construction.

The newlyweds are now making their home at 20 Church St., Belleville.

The rehearsal party was held at the home of the bride's parents on Elwell Road.

St. Anthony's is setting for mid-August ceremony

St. Anthony's Catholic Church was the setting August 2 for the double ring ceremony which joined Lois Faye Helton and Robert Allan Dziekan in holy matrimony.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Helton of 40320 Edison Lake Rd., Romulus, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. Raymond S. Skoneý conducted the four o'clock rite before some 450 guests.

Miss Helton chose for her wedding day an ivory satin gown frosted with lace and seed pearls. The empire bodice was designed with a rounded neckline traced with beading and capelet sleeves while the softly gathered skirt, banded in lace, was accented with a flounced cathedral train.

A 3-tiered lace-edged veil held by a crescent of pearls and a cascade bouquet of white roses, white spider mums and red sweetheart roses completed her outfit.

The bridal coterie, headed by maid of honor Deborah L. Allion of Romulus, included Shelby Shelton of Lincoln Park; Judy Fry of Taylor; Betty Dziekan of Detroit, the bridegroom's sister; and Sherrie Martin of Detroit, the junior bridesmaid.

The group appeared in pale yellow A-line gowns with criss-crossed spaghetti strap bodices topped by short floral jackets; Miss Allion's in yellow and white and the others in green, yellow and white. They all wore opera-length white gloves and carried bouquets of yellow and white silk flowers.

The bridegroom, the son of Mrs. Gertrude Dziekan of 6851 Waldo, Detroit, asked his best friend, Robert Sydor of Detroit, to be best man. The corps of ushers included Ron Uram, Larry Sydor and Jim Sudak, all of Detroit; Stephen Palka of Romulus, and a cousin, Eddie Mussall of Detroit.

Youngsters in the wedding party were 5-year-old Robbie Martin, the son of the Robert Martins, and 4-year-old Lisa Pacholski, the daughter of the Daniel Pacholskis. As flowergirl, Lisa wore a little white frock trimmed with lace and ribbons.

The UAW Hall, Local 157, was reserved for the reception which followed. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Helton wore a pale peach gown with a sheer long-sleeved jacket accented with lace. The bridegroom's mother donned a powder blue gown with a sleeveless lace jacket.

Now residing at 40304 Edison Lake Rd., Romulus, the newlyweds spent their honeymoon at Penn Hills in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania.

A Belleville High School graduate, the new Mrs. Dziekan, is employed in Detroit at Shatter Proof Glass, Inc. Her husband, a Holy Redeemer High School alumnus, works for Royal Collision in Detroit and also is self-employed.

Jeanne Paulsen, August bride-elect, honored at shower

Jeanne Paulsen, who has an August 30 altar date with Kenn Middlebrook, was the honored guest Sunday at a bridal shower luncheon given by Carol Vibber at the home of her mother, Marian Kaulitz, on Stanley Drive.

Nineteen guests from Canton, Ann Arbor, Tecumseh, Ypsilanti and Belleville answered the one o'clock invitation and enjoyed two pencil games appropriate to the occasion. Prize winners were Karen King, Mary Ann Hudge and Lee Smith who took home colorful pots holding green plants.

With her future honor attendant, Karen King, and the hostess assisting with the ribbons and wrappings, Jeanne opened her many gifts, most of them geared to the kitchen and dining room.

The afternoon concluded with a luncheon of Maurice salad, hot rolls and assorted nuts and mints. Served from a table appointed in yellow and green, the centerpiece was a dainty petit four cake which was served with rainbow sherbet ice cream and coffee.

The daughter of Jack and Marion Paulsen of Ypsilanti, formerly of North Shore Drive, Jeanne and her fiancé have reserved Faith United Methodist Church in Denton for their morning nuptials.

Six-weeks-old Jason William Mida received the sacrament of baptism on his mother and dad's sixth wedding anniversary, Sunday, Aug. 10, at St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The Rev. Ray Bucon presided at the christening at which the baby's uncle and aunt, Tim Skszek and Sandra Fry, were God-parents.

You'll find more Suburban Living on the next four pages

Mida's infant son baptized

Following the ceremony a dinner for some 35 guests was held at the home of the infant's parents, Bill and Karen Mida, on Harris Road, Belleville. Among those attending were Jason's grandparents, Wally and Dorothy Skszek and Herb and Betty Mida, all of Belleville, and his great-grandmother, Mrs. Sarah Duda of Detroit.

potpourri

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

The other night as BG and I watched enrapt as our daughter gave our little grandbaby his evening bath, it dawned on me how darn simple it was to entertain a couple of doting grandparents -- two adults who had certainly seen bathing times before.

But there we were -- BG in genuflect position near the tub and I perched on the lid of the commode -- taking in every precious movement, sound, expression of that little dolphin so thoroughly enjoying his nightly dunking. How was it that shampooing, lathering, rinsing and toweling could become such a fascinating pastime for a couple who'd otherwise be ensconced in the daily paper and Belva Plain's "Random Winds"?

A day earlier the setting for "Let's Watch Matthew" was the family room where grandpa (at the moment dubbed "guppy") and our 15-month-old had a great game of "ah'm gonna getcha" with each taking turns sneaking up on the other -- Matt cracking up with every stage-whispered "BOO!"

This time we gals observed as the two crawled around the floor and ended up in mini "rassling" matches complete with bearhugs. Catching the "big boy" nuzzling the little one's neck and causing him to giggle delightedly just sorta turned us women-folk to mush.

During that last visit (too few and far between, unfortunately), BG and MJ were practically inseparable; that baby having gotten to be his granddad's lap partner on the riding lawnmower and the golf cart and rating solo passenger rides in the big red wheelbarrow. All that came about, of course, after Matthew had been allowed to check out the tires on the cars, re-examine the deer head trophies hanging in the garage and testing every puddle in the driveway and on the patio.

BG might have missed the years when sons were being doled out in the 50's but he finally got his boy -- a grandson -- and he's having a great time making up for some of that missed male-to-male camaraderie.

And you know what? I kinda like that little guy, too!

reader who very much enjoys "potpourri" and particularly the recipe additions.

She asked what had happened to those pizza meatballs I'd mentioned having at my daughter's (Lu is sending me a another recipe; lost the other) and wondered if I'd be able to track down the sloppy joes another reader had mentioned having at Romulus High School during the recent Republican Convention. So -- S.O.S. to anyone on that school system's cafeteria staff -- can you send us a scaled down version of that sandwich which was so highly acclaimed?

A FEW FACTS, LITTLE KNOWN BUT INTERESTING, TO TRADE BACK AND FORTH...

Sweden has the longest life expectancy of any nation -- women with 77 and men with 72 years of age. The U.S. compares very favorably with those statistics. The Netherlands is also high with 77 for women and 71 for men. The country with the lowest life expectancy is Ethiopia which is 38 for both men and women. Canada's rate is close to that of the U.S. with 75 for women and 69 for men.

According to research, women are NOT really more emotional than men. Males just are better at covering up and don't SHOW their feelings as easily.

One out of every five children goes on wetting the bed after the age of four. They generally stop, though, by the time they're 11 years old.

The Latin name for the linen on which Roman cartographers drew was "mappa" -- hence our word "map".

When people tell lies their voices tend to get higher (and give them away?)

According to Science News, the best way to tell a male penguin from a female is by their trumpeting.

LOOKING BACK AT THIS DAY, AUG. 27, IN OTHER YEARS...

IN 550 B.C. -- Confucius, the Chinese sage and philosopher who was to be quoted (often with tongue in cheek) for centuries, was born.

IN 1859 -- The first commercially productive oil well, drilled near Titusville, Pa. by Edwin L. Drake, started the oil boom.

IN 1894 -- Despite a veto of President Grover Cleveland, Congress voted to assess a 2 percent tax on incomes over $4,000.

IN 1904 -- The first automobile driver to be jailed for speeding was given a 5-day sentence in Newport (R.I.) County Jail.

IN 1908 -- Lyndon Baines Johnson, who was to become this country's 36th president, was born in Johnson City, Texas.

IN 1912 -- A new literary hero, Edgar Rice Burroughs, was introduced to the American public when his "Tarzan of the Apes" appeared in a national magazine.

IN 1918 -- Because of a fuel shortage in the United States during World War I, owners of automobiles, motorcycles and motorboats were asked not to use them for pleasure trips on Sundays.

IN 1959 -- Australia retained the Davis Cup as its team (Neal A. Fraser, Roy Emerson and Rod Laver) defeated the U.S. challengers (Alex Olmedo, Barry McKay and Earl Bucholz Jr.) at Forest Hills, N.Y.

IN 1960 (AND ONE DAY EARLIER, ON AUG. 26) -- The AFL-CIO endorsed Sen. John F. Kennedy and his Democratic ticket for the presidency.

IN 1962 -- Spacecraft Mariner II was launched successfully from Cape Canaveral on a projected 15-week trajectory toward the planet Venus.

IN 1964 -- Comedienne Gracie Allen, for 35 years the zany half of a comedy team with her husband, George Burns, died in Hollywood at the age of 58.

THE BOTTOM LINE: A bore is someone who is not even interesting when he talks about what he knows best.

Hitting a child on a bicycle while I'm driving is one of my greatest fears, so it was with gratefulness that I received the following information from the National Safety Council to pass on to all readers and particularly to those with children who do a lot of biking.

Road safety and proper bicycle maintenance are important areas to stress to kids who'll be cycling back and forth to school in just a week or so.

Keep your children safe by keeping them constantly aware of the rules of the road:

- Ride with the flow of traffic, NOT against it!
- Use proper hand signals.
- Understand road signs and directions.
- NEVER ride double.
- NEVER ride out from between parked cars.
- NEVER try to show off to friends when riding in traffic.
- NEVER try to beat an oncoming car by darting across or into traffic.
- NEVER swerve in and out or from one side of the road to the other.

And follow these tips to keep your child's bike safer and cleaner:

- Oil the bike chain, gears and brake.
- Equip the bike with reflectors on the front and back of the bike and on both wheels and pedals for evening safety.
- Attach a bell or horn to warn motorists and pedestrians.
- Keep the bike clean to ensure ease in handling.

And, parents, it's up to you to see that your children follow traffic and safety regulations. Above all, stress that they are a part of the flow of traffic and should ride with it NOT against it.

Parvovirus

By Stanley E. Bartkiewicz,
D.V.M.

The Canine Parvovirus disease is caused by a virus. This virus attacks the cells lining the intestinal tract of dogs, killing these cells and causing a bloody diarrhea from the sloughing intestinal wall.

The virus is shed mainly in the bowel movements of infected dogs, through the virus can be carried from one place to another by flies, bugs, wind, shoes, clothing, etc. So, it is possible that a dog can become infected even if it is kept in its own yard.

A dog which has more opportunity to come in contact with a bowel movement from another dog is, however likely to get the infection.

Parvovirus causes a vomiting and a diarrhea in most infected dogs. The disease can begin as a listlessness then develop into the vomiting and diarrhea possibly followed by dehydration and even death.

Young animals are less resistant and more likely to get a severe case of the Parvovirus through all ages and all breeds of dogs are susceptible to the disease. In young puppies, the virus can attack the heart causing heart failure.

The animal has to fight off the virus by itself. If your dog is abnormally listless, or begins vomiting, or has diarrhea, contact your veterinarian. The veterinarian can support your pet and treat it symptomatically trying to stop the vomiting and diarrhea or placing the animal on fluids if it is dehydrating.

It is now believed that this new virus is a modification of a virus dogs have normally had in their intestinal tract and which had previously not caused any problems. The Canine Parvovirus is in the same family of viruses as the Feline Distemper virus. Cats cannot infect dogs with their virus nor can dogs infect cats with their virus.

Protecting your animal can be difficult. There is a vaccination that your veterinarian can administer to prevent the disease, but it is in very short supply at this time. The next best precaution is to keep your animal on its own property.

Do not walk it; avoid dog runs where other dogs may have had bowel movements contaminating the area; avoid groups of dogs such as dog shows or kennels.

Be as careful as possible.

Accused slayer of parents

Hardesty competent to stand trial

Billy Hardesty, 22, of Van Buren Township, accused killer of his parents and three other persons during a shooting spree in October of 1978, Thursday was ruled competent to stand trial for the slayings.

Washtenaw Circuit Court Judge Ross W. Campbell ruled that the accused slayer was competent and set his trial for Nov. 24. Judge Campbell will preside at the murder trial.

Since the night when he was alleged to have killed his parents, Ron and Jeanette Hardesty, at their home on Martz Road, Hardesty has been in and out of court while the state and private psychiatrists and psychologists have tried to establish his sanity and competency to stand trial.

Leonard Noah, assistant Washtenaw County prosecutor, Monday said Judge Campbell, in his decision last week, acted upon the recommendation of the state Center for Forensic Psychiatry in Ypsilanti and information supplied by a private psychologist hired by the defendant.

Noah termed the case unusual in that Hardesty's parents were killed in Van Buren Township and the three other men were slain in Washtenaw County.

He said Washtenaw took over jurisdiction of the case because the murder scene is Van Buren was within one mile of the line dividing the two counties.

On the night that Hardesty is accused of murdering five persons, he also wounded two others in Washtenaw County, but they survived the shooting.

Noah described Hardesty's current behavior as "pretty good, I guess" at the Forensic Center where he is being held in custody.

News of the five deaths, especially that of Mrs. Hardesty, shook the Van Buren community. She was employed at the Belleville Postoffice and was well-liked by customers and friends.

Hardesty was cornered at his parent's home early on the morning following the shooting and surrendered after he was wounded in a shootout with police officers.

His mother was found dead on the floor of a bedroom and his father's body was found stuffed in a deep freeze.

What the exposure meters are all about

By DON GREEN

One of the lesser common types of exposure meters used today is the photoelectric type. These instruments are highly sensitive and very accurate.

When using the photoelectric meter, the chance of human error is reduced because the meter measures the intensity of light directly and it is not necessary to try to estimate the intensity of light by checking the various conditions existing at the time of exposure.

There are two main types of photoelectric meters; reflected light meters and incident light meters. With the reflected light meter, reflected light is measured by directing the meter towards the scene and measuring the light reflected from the scene.

The meter can be directed towards the subject, depending on the scene photographed, but in either case the sensitive cell is always pointed towards the scene to be photographed.

The incident light meter measures the light falling on the scene. Using this system the meter is held at the position of the camera or near the subject and directed at the camera. The light falling on the scene is measured directly.

One of the more sophisticated and widely used types of metering systems on the market today is the CDS type (Cadmium Sulphide).

This meter is of the reflected light type but instead of having a selenium cell which generates its own current, the CDS cell must have an electric current from a small battery for it to work.

When the light strikes the CDS cell it acts just the opposite of the selenium cell in that it acts as a proportionate variable resistor and its resistance decreases as the intensity of the light increases. As this resistance increases or decreases it controls the flow of electricity from the battery through the circuit proportionately and causes a needle to deflect.

The amount of deflection is read out on a scale as a particular value of light intensity which can then be computed in terms of exposure setting on appropriate dials on the meter.

Because the CDS system includes a power supply (battery), its range of sensitivity is greatly increased so much so that it will give accurate exposure readings ranging from milliseconds to many minutes. The sensitivity is so great that reading in moonlight can be made.
